The research team along with the PAR Team and Immigrant Refugee and Visible Minority Women of Saskatchewan would like to thank Prairie Women's Health Centre of Excellence for their financial and ongoing support and encouragement during the development of this project. The team would like to particularly thank Josephine Savarese for her support and expertise.

The team extends appreciation to the professionals in agencies and organizations who assisted with organizing focus groups, in identifying participants for the study and in providing valuable feedback during the study. In particular, we wish to thank the Multicultural Association of Moose Jaw for their invaluable assistance in contacting newly arrived immigrants and the Registered Psychiatric Nurses Association of Saskatchewan for helping us contact their members.

Finally, we would like to thank all the women who agreed to participate and assist in this project. We want to thank the participants for their hospitality as they opened their doors to us, and are grateful for the time that was dedicated to the interviews. The strength and resilience of all these women have inspired us.
